Sad Ear Dog* "I don't like this one bit."*

Dog Face on Fence* "Yeah, I know what you mean."*

Shi Tzu* "What? What are you talking about?"*

Greyhound* "Well, it's pretty obvious from where I sit."*

3 Dachshunds* "We all get along just fine. Things would be so much better if everyone was more alike."*

Dog with Ponytail on Top* "Wait a minute! What's wrong with the way I am?"*

Dog in Doorway* "I'm sorry... I feel really uncomfortable talking about this. I'm just going to lay low."*

Noble Dog* "I'm in charge and I'm determined that everyone get along. We can't let these differences be a problem. Ever!"*

Odd-eyed White Dog* "Oh, c'mon. Lighten up. Why is everyone so serious? I've got two different colored eyes but you don't see me making a big deal about being different."*

Comb-over Dog* "I like being different, darling! Standing out from the crowd makes me feel special. I'd just hate to be ordinary."*

Fox Hound* "Oh, please... spare me... I'm sure she's talented, but such a pain. I'd rather be with my own kind."*

Yellow Lab* "Hey, I like her! Sure, she's different— but we could use more different types around here— keeps things interesting."*

Wild-haired Dark Little Dog* "Interesting? I'm interesting."*

continued...

* Blonde Dog * “No, no, no – you’re just well, weird. Now, I’m interesting.”

* Aussie Sheep Dog * “Differences are not interesting— differences are difficult.
We should just ignore the differences. They only cause trouble.”

* Long Nose White Dog * “You can’t ignore differences – they’re as plain as the nose on your face.”

* Black-eyed Dog * “Sometimes others pick on you when you’re different. It’s really hard.”

* Dog with Mark on Forehead * “Yeah, it’s not easy being different.”

* Grinning Dog * “Me, I just grin and bear it.”

* Chihuahua * “What’s all this fuss about differences? Take a look; we have so much in common!”

* Squinty-eyed Dog * “Hmmm... I don’t know about that.”

* Propeller-ear Dog * “All I can see are differences.”

* Mohawk Dog * “Yeah, me too.”

* Dog Wearing Beads * “How can you say we have so much in common? I don’t see it.”

* Mastiff * “We’re so different in size...”

* Two Pugs * “And color...”

* Long-haired Whiskered Dog * “And hair...”

* Blue-eyed Terrier * “And eyes...”

* Pair of Dachshunds, one Barks * “And voices...”

* Under-bite dog * “And faces...”

* Peke-a-chow mix * “And features...”

continued...

* Frizzy-haired Weird Dog * “How can we ever deal with so many differences?”

* Chihuahua * “Look deeper. Don’t you see how much we have in common?”

* Rottweiler * “Hmmm... could the little guy be right?”

* Husky * “Now that I think about it— we do all have ears, eyes, and noses.”

* Big Dog, Blue Eyes * “And we’ve got hearts and minds.”

* Shepherd Mix * “We’re loyal and smart.”

* Chihuahua * “No, no, come on, look deeper.”

* Bulldog Mix * “Ohhhhh, I think I see what we’ve been missing.”

* One-eyed, Red-nose Pit Bull * “Yeah... that courage is more important than color...”

* Very Hairy Dog * “And heart is more significant than hair.”

* White Puppy * “That love is said in all languages.”

* Black Dog * “And that character is built in all cultures.”

* Chihuahua & Big Dog (only Chihuahua Speaks) * “Yes, when we look deeper we discover that both differences and similarities are important. Differences give us each unique skills to contribute and similarities give us common ground on which to build success.”
